Three of the most recent headlines are:

- Rough Runway, Cash Only
- Don't go here unless you want to be robbed by the CAA
- Inbound ATC was frightening

Tempting to joke that this sound like Miami, or Nice - but these are reviews of FZAA/Kinshasa, in the DRC - rated at 2.5, one of the lowest Airports on Aireport.

One report reads: "Don't go here unless you like to be robbed by the CAA. I was told I was in big trouble for not having an MEL on a private airplane. 500 USD would [apparently] solve everything"

Continuing: "ATC is terrible, they wanted us to hold right over the airport in the middle of the T'storm we wanted to wait for to pass. I ended up telling him we would hold 15 miles out on the 090 radial. He wasn't very happy about being over-ruled, but it worked"

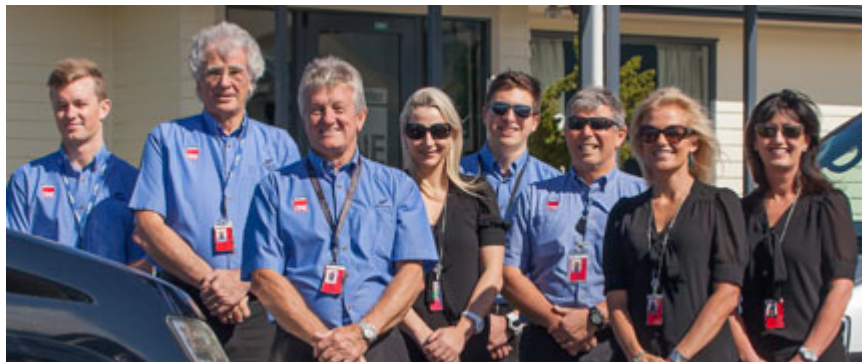

And: "People mill around the airplane looking for fuel drips to collect in their cans. Some guy told me he was a fueling assistant and wanted cash for his kind assistance. The handler is pretty much worthless, he just wants to collect the cash = $2700 USD for a fuel stop in a Falcon 900."

There are some other horror stories in the database. SVMI/Caracas, Venezuela ("Handler demanded $9000 in Cash"); VECC/Calcutta ("Immigration was a nightmare"); HEAX/Alexandria ("Handler tried the shakedown")

There are also plenty of good reports - EGSS/London Stansted is "As easy as it gets in Europe", EINN/Shannon, Ireland is "Absolutely outstanding", and NFFN/Nadi, Fiji is given "Quick Turn,

Inexpensive Fuel, and Perfect”

NZAA/Auckland, New Zealand stands out as getting consistently good reviews: “Very knowledgeable and helpful staff”, “Air Centre One is superb”, “Flawless from Gordy” ... the crew at Air Centre One is clearly keeping their customers very happy. Nice work guys.

“Service and handling perfect”

Went through here twice on the way to Australia and back. The first time was a quick overnight for crew rest and the second time was a fuel tech stop. Both times the service and handling were perfect the best Ive ever had here in 20 years. Handler agent both times was Patricia who did an excellent job. Fuel truck was waiting for us and CIQ was quick and easy. We were well prepared with the empty bug spray can completed disinsection form and stamped Gen Dec from the Aussies. Patricia was able to get us several cases each of the Pre-Departure and Top-Of-Descent bug sprays each way through. Did the crew rest at the
